

TYC Daffodil Trivia Contest Bribes

During the Daffodil Trivia contest. Occasionally teams give answers that must be judged for accuracy. The contest uses judges to break ties when a trivia answer is not clearly either correct or incorrect. The judges are instructed to rule impartially, but bribes presented before the contest can sway the judges when the ruling is unclear.

In the past, teams have used gifts associated with the festival theme or alcoholic beverages for bribes.

Although we don't rule this out, teams are encouraged to consider a small charity contribution (to the charity of the participating club's choice) in lieu of a physical gift. A physical gift should not be valued more than $50 total (there is no specified limit on charity contributions, but we ask clubs to avoid excessive gifting).

Bribes are not mandatory. They add an element of fun to the contest while still providing a means of resolving ambiguities associated with debatable contest answers.
